ENGLAND MAY HAVE TO FIGHT

Deadlock at the Chinese City Which May Break the Peace of World.

EW YORK, March 19 .- A cable to the Herald from Tientsin, dated March 19, 7 p. m., says: Coupt von Waldersee arrived here from Elaochau at 4 o'clock. He was met at the station by General Wogack, General Campbell and other general officers. The Field Marshal had long and separate conversations with the Russian and English commanders. He orally reviewed the propositions which had been made by telegraph and which the Russians had declined to entertain. General Wogack declined to discuss the question of ownership until the British had withdrawn from the ground claimed by Russia and occupied by his under his instructions he could not withdraw from his position. The deadock, therefore, continues. Count von Waldersee is visibly depressed at his failure to arrange the question, the seriousness of which he seemed fully to realize. After an hour he returned o Peking. There has been much fighting during the day between the French and British soldiers, but up to the present there have been no serious results. General Voyron has ordered out the gendarmes. who, together with the Austrians, are now guarding the settlement and preventing the French soldiers from entering. The British hold their ground. General Campbell has received the approval of the Government in his view of the dispute with the Russian commander here, and is holding his ground under instructions from London. Count von Waldersee's proposition, which General Wogack declined to entertain, was that the disputed territory be turned over to a neutral guard, the Russians and British simultaneously withdrawing, pending a legal investigation of the questions involved. The British officers maintain that if, as is rumored, the Russlan troops are being hurried to Tientsin from Port Arthur, the British Government will take their arrival as a hostile movement on the part of Russia. Negotiations on the spot are at an end and the pourparlers are now being conducted directly between the two Cabinets at London and St. Petersburg.

UOTH Jared Smith, "Here is a chance for me that can't be missed; For these benighted Islanders I'll turn philanthropist; Besides 'twill be an easy way to win both name and fame, For they'll surely all adore me when they understand my game. Just think of all those healthy appetites, now gone to waste On cuttlefish and seaweed balls and taro na paste; The only meat they ever get is some unlucky pup; They never saw a napkin, nor ever used a cup. Ah, what an opportunity for missionary work, To turn them from the dreadful tastes that deep within them lurk! Think what a rich reward 'twill be to watch the shining face Of some befeathered chieftain of this unenlighted race, When he stands amid his followers to make the mighty boast That he is first of all his race to eat poached eggs on toast. These simple folk of nature's ways with their a gestions grand Have all the world before them to be given by my hand.

A gastronome would give his all for half the chance they've got. An epicure would envy them their lucky, happy lot. Oh, the guttural sounds of pleasure as, soft and smooth as silk, Goes gurgling down each dusky throat the first sweet draught of milk And then to see their simple glee, when first I show them how To get their early breakfast from the first imported cow. The pishes that they've missed these years while they've been eating dog! Ham sandwiches they've never had, in the Sandwich Islands, too! The aftermath of too much pork they've never had to rue, Pork chops and bacon they've ne'er had, nor spare ribs crisp and brown; Nor ham and eggs! I'll simply turn their whole world upside down, Within a month from when I land I'm willing to make bets That every native family 'll be raising pigs for pets. They've never felt the radish's insidious, pungent bite, Celery, carrots, cabbages, to them are out of sight; Asparagus and artichokes, parsnips and parsley too; They've never tasted apple ple; they can't have eaten stew Potatoes—yes, and think of it! Imagine what it means— They've never delved in the delights of Boston pork and beans. There are onions, too, and turnips-I'll hold a county fair, Where they can gaze on pumpkins and vegetables rare. The poor I'll lead to affluence beyond the reach of harm, By showing them the value of a modern chicken farm. Whene'er I walk the folks will all flop on each awe-struck face; I'll be a regular delty, their idols I'll replace. The presents mey win bring me-the pearls and curios rare-Will promptly make my fortune. Oh, I'll be the real thing there! Beyond a doubt, this is a chance by me not to be missed.'
